

A MERCHANT ENDS HIS LIFE.

HE KILLS HIMSELF IN A LIQUOR STORE.

THE FIRM OF WHICH HE WAS A MEMBER FALLS SOON AFTER THE SUICIDE.

Julius H. Stich, the senior partner in the firm of Stich Brothers, wholesale dealers in hats at No. 17 and 19 East Fourth-st., committed suicide yesterday in the liquor store of Carl Grogan, at No. 194 Third-ave. Business troubles caused him to end his life. A few hours after his death the announcement was made that the firm had failed.

Julius Stich entered the liquor store, where he was a stranger, about 10:30 a. m., spoke gruffly to one of the barkeepers, drank a glass of liquor and went into the toilet room. Presently a shot was heard, and the body of the merchant was found lying on the floor of the room. He had shot himself in the temple and had killed himself instantly. In his pockets were papers which showed that he was. There was also a check for $75 and $11.75 in cash.

Information of the suicide was sent to the office of Stich Brothers, in Fourth-st. A brother of the dead man was in the liquor store at No. 194 Third-ave. at 1 p. m. when Deputy Coroner Weston went there to make an investigation. The name of that brother was said to be Samuel Stich. He told Dr. Weston that Julius Stich had committed suicide on account of business troubles. Julius had become involved, he said, and was about to make an assignment with large liabilities. Julius might have had all the money he needed if he had asked for it, the brother said, but he had been too proud to ask Mr. Stich for it.

Mr. Stich was at his place of business as usual yesterday morning. It was said, but seemed to be in low spirits and complained of feeling ill. He left his office before 10 a. m., saying that he was going to his home. Dr. Weston gave a permit for the removal of Stich's body to the home of his family in Lexington-ave. It was said last evening that Stich had been prominent in Hebrew society in this city. He was governor of the Bnai Bith Benevolent Organization.

Edward Stich, as surviving partner of the firm, confessed to fourteen judgments in the afternoon, aggregating $22,568, to the following creditors: Mendel Brothers, $3,040; S. Rawitzer & Co., $3,017; Lena Menziesheimer, $2,254; Edward Monash, $2,011; Lewis M. Horathal, $2,011; Denver Goodhart & Co., $1,517; Band & Levi, $1,517; A. Levy & Co., $1,516; John J. Aron, $1,517; Levi De Wolf, $1,038; Leo Schlesinger, $1,017; William Hyman & Co., $1,017; Levi Wechsler & Co., $767, and Nathan Sewitzer, $117. All the judgments were for borrowed money, of which over $11,000 had been borrowed on March 2, 3 and 4. The Sheriff took charge of the store late in the day.

The firm consisted of Julius H. Stich and Edward Stich. They succeeded Stich & Bromberg in January, 1876, when it was said, they had a capital of $40,000. Several years ago they gave accommodation paper to Levy Brothers & Co., wholesale clothiers, and when that firm failed Stich Brothers were preferred for $47,000. Considerable uneasiness was felt at that time, but Stich Brothers made arrangements with the banks and their largest creditors, and carried on their business. The members of the firm made many friends in the trade. For several years, it was said, they had made little or no headway in the business.

Horwitz & Hershefeld are the attorneys for the judgment creditors. Mr. Hershefeld said yesterday that Julius and Edward Stich were at their office all day Monday going over their accounts. Their affairs have not gone over very well, and they had been borrowing money from friends and exchanging checks right along. They found that they were unable to meet their obligations coming due, and they consulted with us to see what to do in the matter. They felt the situation very much, and the disgrace of a failure which they knew must come. It was their first failure, after a long business career. Julius Stich appeared very much depressed while at this office, and continually walked the floor and wrung his hands. Today I received a telephone message that he was dead. His financial troubles, no doubt, were the cause of his death. The liabilities will probably amount to $115,000, and nominal assets about the same, in stock, bonds and accounts, fixtures, etc.

FLAMES IN A FLAT-HOUSE.

NARROW ESCAPE OF A WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN.

Smoke was seen to come up through the floor of the private office of McDonald & Eckerson, real estate dealers, at the southeast corner of Columbus-ave. and Ninety-fourth-st., about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by one of the employees of the firm. An alarm of fire was at once sent out. Another clerk immediately rushed upstairs to warn the man and his family. The fire broke out in the building, and the tenants were quickly wakened. The building is a handsome one of five stories, known as the Columbia Flats. The ground floor is occupied by McDonald & Eckerson. George Jackson, who keeps a "delicatessen" store, occupies the second floor. The third floor is occupied by the Columbia Bank and Safe Deposit Vaults. There are twelve apartments in the building, and ten of them were occupied when the fire broke out. All of the tenants escaped with ease by the stairs, with the exception of Mrs. A. H. Boughton, her three small children and a nurse girl, who occupied the flat above the real estate office. For a time they were in great danger.

When the thick smoke which came up the air shaft shut off the possibility of reaching the stairs, Mrs. Boughton became terribly frightened, and rushed to the window with one of her children. She started to throw it out to those below. She was prevented from doing this by the warning shouts of the crowd in the street, and stood at the window in a frenzy of excitement, tearing at her hair, and appealing to the spectators for help. A ladder was quickly put up to the window at which the woman was standing, and a fireman climbed up and took the children out. As the nurse and Mrs. Boughton rushed to the window again, Mrs. Boughton rushed to the window again with the baby. She handed the child over to the fireman, and then descended the ladder herself with the help of a fireman. The nurse followed her shortly after, and all were taken to the home of J. H. Lavigne, No. 69 West Ninety-third-st.

For a short time the fire threatened to do great damage. The engine which responded to the first alarm could not get water at once, owing to a frozen hydrant. A second alarm was sent out when the fire burst through the lower floor and burned into the real estate office. With the reinforcements, the fire was soon brought under control by the firemen. The damage was slight.

The building is owned by Heyman Brothers, of No. 73 Murray-st.

ARE THESE CHARITERS IN DANGER?

Albany, March 7.—There was a hearing this afternoon before Deputy Attorney General Gilbert on the application of John Flynn, Ellen Geale and Benjamin Rume, asking the Attorney-General to bring an action to annul the charters of the Brooklyn and Union elevated railroads in Brooklyn. The applicants are property owners along the line of the road, and argue that the companies are not regularly incorporated, and that there has been a fraudulent issue of capital stock which was not paid for; that the directors had mismanaged the affairs of the roads, and that the elevated stations were used for other purposes than waiting places for passengers, such as the selling of space for advertisements, etc. W. M. Cohen, for the roads, made a general denial, intimating that these proceedings were somewhat in the nature of a "hoax." He submitted a brief, and the other side was given fifteen days in which to submit their brief.

A DAUGHTER OF CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER DEAD.

Chicago, March 7.—Mrs. A. L. Brown, wife of Archibald Brown and the eldest daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Melville W. Fuller, died this morning, after a short illness. The immediate cause of her death was blood poisoning, resulting from an operation performed at the birth of her child, some years ago. The Chief Justice and Mrs. Fuller did not arrive here from Washington in time to see their daughter alive, their train being delayed. The death of Mrs. Brown will be a great shock to those who knew her both here and in Washington, where, before her marriage, she was a social leader. She was about twenty-eight years old. Her wedding, which took place at the Capital two years ago, was one of the most brilliant of the season.

GOV. STONE'S PLEA FOR STATE RIGHTS.

REVIEWING THE DECISION OF CIRCUIT JUDGE PHILLIPS IN THE CASE OF THE IMPRISONED COUNTY JUDGES.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 7.—Since Friday, when Judge Phillips, of the United States District Court for the Western District of Missouri, announced his decision in the case of the St. Clair County Judges, imprisoned for refusing to levy a tax for the payment of bonds issued in behalf of railroads never built, Governor Stone has been giving close attention to the points of the opinion. He has given out a long statement on the subject, in which he says that while there is no personal controversy between Judge Phillips and himself, he has gone over the decision thoroughly and does not agree with the court in some of its conclusions. The Governor, in pointed language, corrects the claim that he is trying to defy the Federal Government.

Continuing, he says: "I presume the people of the State could abolish county courts altogether if they saw proper to do so, without first asking leave of bondholders or Federal judges, though I am not guilty of inciting treason in saying it. I suppose the people of the State, if they abolished county courts altogether, could not be compelled to make damages or otherwise to compensate county judges for the convenience of county creditors, or to serve the purpose of Federal courts. I suppose the people of the State, if they so desired, could adopt a constitutional provision making it the duty of the Assembly to meet annually, and when in session, by some joint action, with the approval of the Governor, to levy both State and County taxes."

Referring to the Federal Court, the Governor says: "The Federal Court is semi-foreign in the State. The Circuit Judges are rarely citizens of the State whose votes they cast at election. The States have absolutely no control over them. The Federal Government is magnified and the State Government dwarfed in their thought. They are apt to force their measures and purposes without much regard to local interests or the rights of the State. Then go back to the old rule, when the spirit as well as the State sovereignty—sovereignty was observed. When a proper sphere was something more than a shallow pretence or a mocking dream. Do that, and these hateful and menacing conflicts in jurisdiction will disappear."

"Since when and by whom were the Federal Courts made the special guardians of the rights of the people? I think it safe to say that courts holding such contemptuous views of the rights of the people, and who refuse to deal with power to override and destroy that authority."

THE LOST CHISELHURST'S CREW SAVED.

NINE MEN RESCUED WITH GREAT DANGER—A FALSE REPORT THAT THEY WERE THE NARONIC'S.

Philadelphia, March 7.—The British tramp steamer Eglantine, from Rio Marino, arrived at this port this morning with the crew of the lost British barkentine Chiselhurst. The crew of the Chiselhurst, which had been reported as having been taken off by Captain Bruce of the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a soul was lost, although the small boats of both vessels were smashed and the seamen had to be hauled aboard with ropes. The rescued men are Captain Norby, First Mate Evans, Second Mate Johnson, the steward, Lawrence, and the crew, the new officers, Mr. Neptune, who went with the Eglantine with great difficulty, about 120 miles north of the Bermudas, and not a